This essay is a part (subdivision) of the 'Five Generations of the Terry of Bucks County Pennsylvania', describing the descendants of Thomas Terry, a grandson of Thomas Terry born abt 1653, the first Terry settler of Bucks County. The early Terrys were Quakers.¹

The genealogy which follows begins at the third generation after Thomas Terry of Bucks, b. 1653. There are several direct descendants of this Thomas whose Y-DNA STRs are presented and discussed in 'Addendum 1. Analysis of Terry Y-DNA Markers.'

Generation Three²

1. Thomas John Terry (Jasper² Thomas¹)³ was born abt 1711 in Makefield Township, Bucks and died⁴ 22 May 1792 at Southampton, Bucks.^{5,6} There are no Thomases in the 1786 tax

attraction was the promise of cheap land and exemption from military service, which was important to them as Quakers. Once in York County, Ontario³⁸ they joined a branch of the Quakers called the Children of Peace.^{39,40} The family helped build the Sharon Temple (Children of Peace) and the Terry family donated the land nearby for the Sharon cemetery; David Terry was the first to be interred there.^{41,42,43}

Contains errors: page 1 presents the background of the family in Bucks County and contends that nine of the children (all the children still living in 1805) were members of the Children of Peace, but this cannot be correct as not all children went to Canada (notably John the oldest and Joseph the sixth child) and not all children who went to Canada were documented to be a part of the Children of Peace—the sharontemple.ca history presents descendants of only three of the children: Rachel, Benjamin, and Mary; hereafter The Terry Family.

Whereas the 'plain folk' (Quakers) had no musical tradition, the Children of Peace created the first civilian band in Canada and built the first organ in Ontario. By the 1820's the group had developed a cooperative economy and had founded their own credit union. By selling their farm produce as a group, they could get better prices. They were not communal, but had a land-sharing system that made them, as a group, prosperous farmers in an era when new farmers frequently failed. By the late 1820's they had founded their own town "Hope" (later Sharon) and had begun the construction of the Sharon Temple, an imitation of the Temple of Solomon, completed 1831.

- 15 iii. GRACE TERRY, born 1768 at Bucks and died before 1850. She probably married Isaac Rightly (b. 1768, died before 1861) of Bucks County and they moved with her parents to East Gwillimbury, York, Ontario where their son William was living in 1851 with the rest of the David Terry descendants.⁴⁷

married Esther _____, a non-Quaker 6 Jun 1770.^{72,73} She died 16 Apr 1789 at Byberry Twp., Philadelphia County.⁷⁴

Benjamin and Esther Terry had at least three children:⁷⁵

- 27 i. SUSANNAH TERRY, b. 1773 of Bucks.⁷⁶
- 28 ii. JANE TERRY, b. 1775 of Bucks.
- + 29 iii. DAVID TERRY,⁷⁷ b. 1784 of Bucks and d. 1856 at Kettleby, York, Canada. He went Chester County, PA and then to Ontario, Canada with his father before 1805.

8. Thomas Terry (Thomas³ Jasper² Thomas¹) born abt 1749 of Bucks or Byberry Twp, Philadelphia County and died Dec 1798.⁷⁸ He is not found in the census. There are two Thomas Terrys in the 1782 tax records; the one in Bensalem Twp is probably Thomas the father (1711-1792) and the one in Northampton is likely this Thomas.⁷⁹ He married⁸⁰ 14 Oct 1772 at Bucks

⁷⁵ Susanna's will, proven 6 Nov 1805; the two girls are named but the son 'David' is inexplicably not named. Yet in the 1800 census vide supra there was a 16-25 male in the household, the girls were likely already married.

⁷⁶ Bucks County, PA Wills, abstracts 1685-1825, Vol. 2, p 81; mentions witness 'Susannah Tery' in the John Townsend Will (dated Aug 7, 1799, proved Aug 6, 1800) of Bensalem Twp/Byberry Preparative Meeting—this is the only Susannah Terry that fits this time and place window; online at FamilySearch (accessed 2 Sep 2016).

30. David Terry (Thomas⁴ Thomas³ Jasper² Thomas¹) was born abt 1775 of Moreland Twp, Montgomery, Pennsylvania. He does not appear in the 1790-1820 censuses of Pennsylvania. It is widely believed without proof (viz. FamilySearch Family Tree, Ancestry trees and other sources) that this David married Sarah Doran of New Jersey, but this is almost certainly wrong.²⁵¹ David, the son of Thomas⁴, clearly has disappeared from Pennsylvania, but then perhaps shows up in the Carolinas? There was a David Terry resident in Craven County in the 1800 census²⁵² that was the right age to be the son of Thomas Terry and Olly Davis. There is no documentary proof for this. There are other possibilities, but they are less likely.

NOTE: There is Y-DNA data from a descendant (see 'Addendum 1. Analysis of Terry Y-DNA Markers' and references therein).

In some way, we must deal with the fact that John Thomas Terry was born 22 Mar 1800 at New Bern, Craven, North Carolina and he was shown by Y-DNA analysis to be a descendant of Thomas Terry of Bucks (b. 1653).

John Thomas Terry could be a grandson of William Terry b. 1724 (m. Rachel Manson), although Y-DNA analysis disfavors this possibility.²⁵³ There are already two other descendants of William Terry who left Bucks for Virginia that have been shown to be descendants of Thomas Terry of Bucks by Y-DNA analysis. Their common ancestor is the Virginian John Terry (1760-1842), son of William.

'David' and Mrs. Terry had at least one child.

108 i. JOHN THOMAS TERRY was born 22 Mar 1800 at New Bern, Craven, North Carolina and died 31 Oct 1855; buried²⁵⁴ with his wife at Freeman Cemetery, Troup, Georgia. He married Julia Brooks abt 1824. She was born 26 Aug 1807 at North Carolina and died 10 Apr 1863; also buried at Freeman Cemetery. John Terry was one of ²⁵¹ In addition to the disparity in their ages (David b. 1775 and Sarah b. 1792) there is clear evidence that the 'David Terry' that was married to Sarah Doran was born in New Jersey! David and Sarah lived the later part of their lives, and both died in Philadelphia where there is evidence of his NJ birth. See 'David Terry/Mary and Sarah Doran'; 'Five Generations of the Terry Family in Bucks County, Pennsylvania' essay: in 'Group 2: no linkage to Thomas Terry b. 1653 of Bucks' near the end of the essay for more details and sources.

²⁵² 1800 U. S. Census of New Bern, Craven, North Carolina, Roll 31, Page 132, Image 253, FHL Film 337907, household of nine, 3 over 25, 2 sons and 3 daus, sons are not under 10 (there is no date for the census); online at ancestry.com (accessed 27 May 2016).
